

DEMOCRAT AND SENTINEL.

PENNSYLVANIA RESERVES—SACRIFICED AGAIN.

In reference to our soldiers, who have been so roughly used and fought so well from Drainsville to Fredericksburg, the Lancaster Inquirer says:

It will be seen by the telegraphic account published in yesterday's extra, of the battle at Massaponix creek, that the Reserves led the extreme advance and opened "the ball."—Nearly all the generals killed and wounded belong to that corps. From this, it is easy to estimate the slaughter in the ranks. The gallant men, the "heroes of a hundred battles," have again been put forward in the advance to do the same deeds of heroism and glory. We presume this fierce battle will leave so few that the reserves will live only in name.

To be deprived of all the comforts of life to undergo unusual hardships and exposures, and to risk not only the chances of battle, but the pestilence which is begotten in swamps, would seem to be enough to ask of our soldier, without robbing them of the credit due to brave men for gallant conduct. The Pennsylvania Reserves, so long under Gen. McCall but now led by Gen. Meade, has deserved as well of the country as any command in the service.

From the time of the Drainsville fight, on the Peninsula, at Sharpsburg, at Antietam, now at Fredericksburg, the Corps has taken a prominent part in every engagement of the Army of the Potomac; and sustained without support the assault of the rebel forces three times as large as itself. Some of the gallant regiments which left Pennsylvania a year ago with full ranks are now so sadly reduced that they are regiments only in name and by virtue of their glorious deeds. When they reached Fredericksburg, the advance of Gen. Burnside's grand army, it was saddening enough to see their dress parades. Three hundred or three hundred and fifty battle-worn, hungry ill-clad veterans were all that adjutants could return as fit for duty. The rest filled bloody graves won at each of the Peninsula battle fields, at Sharpsburg, Antietam, and now seal their devotion at Fredericksburg, or had fallen victims to disease.—But when the line of march from Fredericksburg was taken up the men stepped out as briskly and talked as cheerfully as if the regiments were marching to their first battle.

In the battles of Sharpsburg and Antietam the corps performed prodigies of valor, charging the enemy over and over again, driving superior forces from chosen positions, and contending for hours and hours with fearful odds. Their bravery may be measured by their losses, which were more than one seventh of the force engaged.

A correspondent of the N. Y. Tribune writes:

Massachusetts, New York, and Pennsylvania, have been fearful sufferers, and the old regiments that fought in all the battles on the Peninsula, and from South Mountain to Fredericksburg are now but corporal's guards, and it is literally true that some of them are so small that they have been assigned to the duty of special guards at headquarters.

While at the headquarters of Gen. Meade, who commands McCall's old division of Pennsylvania Reserves, to-day, to obtain an official list of the killed and wounded, I was informed that false statements had been made with regard to the conduct of those old troops on the battlefield. They are charged with having run after the first severe volley from the enemy.—Instead of this being true, every intelligent correspondent must know by this time that Gen. Meade's Division was really the only one that captured a Rebel intrenchment along the entire line of the army from right to left, and that it had been properly re-enforced it could have held it. I have known this division of Pennsylvania Reserves almost from the date of its formation. Last Spring, when under Gen. McDowell, and encamped upon this ground, it was considered by that educated soldier one of the finest divisions in the Army of the Rappahannock, and it was with deep regret that he learned, when he returned from that important campaign to the Valley of the Shenandoah, that it had been taken from his command, and sent to Gen. McClellan. We all know how well it fought at South Mountain and Antietam, and to say that it won those laurels only to lose them upon another field, is a libel upon the previous hard-earned record of the division—I was not upon the left during the battles of Saturday, but believe—from a knowledge of its former history, and from the reports of those who saw the division in action—that it did nothing to disgrace itself; but on the contrary, performed all that it was possible to do under the circumstances.

The wife of Elias Davis, of St. Clair township, gave birth to three sons and one daughter, on last Saturday. One of the sons died on last Monday, the remainder are reported sprightly. This is a remarkable case. Mr. Davis, the lucky father, was drafted, but was exempted, and he deserved to be.—Bedford Inquirer.

While one of our chaplains of the army was repeating this line of the Lord's prayer,—“Give us this day our daily bread,” a soldier added, with a loud voice—“Fresh.”
